Recently I contacted Scott Caruso of Caruso Care, Inc. National Ceiling, Wall, and Lighting Network to clean the ceiling tile at a Wal-Mart that had 28 year old tile in place. Originally, the scope of construction read remove and replace the first 6 rows of tile, approx. 5 % of the store's total. I was assured this wasn't necessary, and that this tile would be cleaned back to it's original luster in a short amount of time. Everyone involved was skeptical with this bold statement, but with the potential savings to our client of several thousand dollars for this option we decided to go with this route. To our astonishment, upon completion, our client's ceiling tile indeed was impressive.

I have been in the construction industry over 30 years and have never before seen results that even came close in comparison. Scott's staff was courteous, easy to work with, protected all merchandise, and cleaned up after themselves upon completion of every nightly shift.

As an added bonus Scott's years of experience along with gaining friends through out the United States in the construction industry, actually helped our company when we were in need of locating specialized trades to help reduce over all expenses to our client and efficiently use the allotted time given to complete individual projects.

I would highly recommend Caruso Care, Inc. For your tile cleaning needs as well as inquire what other specialties they provide. Caruso Care, Inc. truly is a company of their word. It could potentially be disastrous to think any other organization could perform to this level of achievement. There is absolutely no doubt who will receive all of my future business when it comes to this need.

Feel free to contact me at your earliest convenience to discuss.

Thank you,
